Independent Travel During Interim or May Away Course

Students who wish to travel on their own during designated free time on a LaGrange College study away program must be approved by the faculty leaders. They are advised to travel with at least one other friend, stay at hotels recommended by guide books, and to keep the faculty leaders, friends and family informed of their whereabouts by sharing their itinerary and contact information with them. We also require that students read carefully the current U.S. State Department travel advisories and follow the advice provided. Faculty leaders can deny this request based on the most current State Department Travel Advisories.
